Signals Now Operating at Two Santa Fe Crossings

Blinking, bell-ringing signals, designed to warn motorists of the approach of a train, have been installed at the Santa Fe crossing at Cabrillo avenue and at Crenshaw boulevard.

Installation of the warning devices came late last month after months of investigation and research by Santa Fe and city officials and the Torrance Chamber of Commerce. The railroad and the city shared in the cost of the project.

The Crenshaw boulevard crossing became the subject of public attention in October of 1947 when Adrian Tatum, 22, was injured when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided with a train. A $100,000 damage suit has been filed against Santa Fe, the City of Torrance and the fireman and engineer aboard the train at the time of the accident.

City Receiving Farming Land Bids

Bids are now being received by the city for farming rights on a large tract of municipal airport property. A five-year lease is sought for acreage adjacent to the flight strip, according to City Manager George W. Stevens. Offers will be considered by the City Council on Sept. 13.

Center Swaps Names

The Torrance Welfare Center is no more. Now it will be called the Community Chest Service Center. Housed in the same building at 1339 Post Avenue are headquarters of the Veterans Service Center, Family Service, Catholic Welfare Bureau, Y.W.C.A., and the Girl and Boy Scout groups.

National Guard Unit Puts 'Show on Road'

A field display of some of the mobile equipment used by Torrance's Company A, of the 578th Engineer's battalion, National Guard, will set up Saturday morning across Cravens Avenue from the City Hall.

According to Lt. Jess Ball of the company, the display has been requested by many Torrance people who feel that not enough emphasis has been placed on publicizing the local National Guard unit.

He pointed out that pay in the National Guard ranges from $1.25 to $2.75 per hour, depending on grade. If the local company reaches full strength—133 men and officers—the annual payroll for the unit will be $27,200. Training periods are held two hours weekly, every Tuesday
